They are cheaper and better than either lumber, stone or concrete. The ideal material for cellar, wall, barns, stables, warehouses, residences, etc. We make to order hollow brick for partitions ready to plaster on. No lathing required. We make drain tile from 3 to 18 inches in diameter, and vitrified sidewalk and street paving brick, red, chocolate, brown and salt-glazed face brick. Nothing will go through fire and stand but burnt clay. Lumber burns up and stone and cement crumbles from heat and water in case of fire. Ask them at San Francisco. Write for further information.

WHEN THE TOWN IS CLEAN

Then Everything Will Look Better;
Everybody Will Feel Better

Now let the people of Ada as a whole stand by the women's federation and the city administration. Let everything else be dropped during the hours suggested for next Tuesday—4 to 6 p. m.—and one and all join in the crusade for a cleaner town. Let every business house close and clean up.

Just at the intermediary stage bigger than a village and hardly yet a city, Ada is a place where the handling of the sanitary situation presents most perplexing problems.

Some of our people want to still live as if in a scattered village, ignoring principles of sanitation. Yet we have no sewerage system, the means of keeping cities clean. A public sentiment for cleanliness must be built up. After a while when Ada is larger and acquires better sanitary facilities the city officers can handle the situation without so much assistance.

The city administration is most anxious for a clean town, but they are almost powerless without the hearty co-operation of the people. For instance, the city government has jurisdiction for sanitary purposes a mile beyond the city limits. It employs a city scavenger designates a dumping ground far out from the city limits, regulates the scavenger's fees so as to make them reasonable and forces him to deposit all refuse upon the distant dumping ground designated. But the city cannot force citizens to employ a scavenger. Some do the work themselves or employ Tom, Dick and Harry.

Result. Any road one takes out of Ada near the corporate limits his vision encounters unsightly and unsanitary heaps of refuse. The city cannot afford to employ sufficient policemen to force all refuse matter to be removed to the regular dumping ground unless people universally patronize the city scavenger. If he neglects his duty he can be fired and one appointed who will do his duty.

SHRINERS HURLED TO DEATH

21 People Instantly Killed in California wreck

Santa Barbara Cal May 11.—While hurrying northward over the coast line of the Southern Pacific railway Saturday afternoon homeward bound after a week of fraternizing and festa in Los Angeles 115 Shriners of Jemalia Temple of Buffalo and Rajah temple of Reading with their families and friends were hurled into the midst of death when their special train running fifty miles an hour struck a defective switch at Honda a lonely station on the sand wastes of the Pacific beach derailing the train, smashing the coaches into flinders, killing 21 almost instantly and injuring more than a score of others. The bodies twenty-five lie in the morgues at Santa Barbara this afternoon and ten more are at San Luis Obispo. The injured many of whom are terribly hurt and will probably die are in two sanitariums at San Luis Obispo.

The wreck occurred exactly at 2 o'clock one hour and forty-five minutes after the convalescent visitors forming a merry party had spent all the morning sightseeing in Santa Barbara.

The statement that the train was making a terrific speed when it struck the defective track is borne out by the fact that it covered sixty-one miles of curves and crooked track between Honda and Honda in exactly ten minutes.

There was no warning of the impending calamity. The special plunked upon the defective switch and in an instant the big locomotive, baggage car, diner and Pullman coupled together were hurled together in a huge heap of wreckage. The engine shot forward on the broken track tearing up the rails and ties and twisting the huge iron spurs into fishhooks. The baggage car half buried itself in the sand on the right side of the locomotive. It was smashed almost to kindling wood.

DINING CAR A DEATH TRAP. The dining car in which were thirty-two persons eating their noon day meal leaped into the air directly onto the top of the demolished locomotive. Nearly every person in this car was instantly killed. Scores were scalded by escaping steam from disconnected pipes in the kitchen diner.

The terror and turmoil of the scene was indescribable. Many of those who escaped instant death by the first impact were crushed by the rear coaches hurled upon the wreckage.

Three quarters of a mile, seeking help before he discovered his arm was broken and that he was severely scalded.

STATE PRESS ASSOCIATION

Mettlester Meeting Ended—Furman in Favor With the Editors.

The Oklahoma state press association at South McAlester last Saturday closed its annual meeting after transacting their business and carrying out an edifying program of addresses on appropriate topics. Altogether it was a most successful meeting.

The entertainment provided for the visitors was varied and delightful throughout. One of the last features of the pleasure program was a trolley ride on the belt line to Hartshorne.

On this ride occurred a notable little incident. A secret ballot was taken on candidates for governor and 118 senators resulting as follows: For governor—Cruce 22 Haskell 6 Doyle 3 Frantz 6 Busby 1 For senators—Owens 20 Luman 10 Rutherford 7 Gore 2 Hoffman 19 Turner 10.

While on the face of the returns do not look so favorable to Judge Luman a fair analysis of the voting will show it up in a different light.

The editor of the News was one of the party and he helped check up the ballots. He observed the six republicans who voted for Frantz also voted for Owens. Also there were two or three big coal operators along and they undoubtedly voted for Owens. According to the estimate of those present Owens was the choice of not more than 13 democratic editors present against the ten for Furman. Considering that Owens is spending thousands of dollars with the newspapers whereas Furman has not the thousands to spend, this is a very complimentary showing for the Ada statesman. There could be nothing mercenary in the votes given him.

Another notable event of the convention was the following vigorous resolution.

Resolved That this association is now as it was one year ago in favor of immediate single statehood and that it looks with disfavor upon any act of anyone calculated to prevent a vote upon the constitution at the earliest possible moment.

As might have been expected, this was not adopted without a struggle.

OVERDRAFTS

It is becoming well known by business men that overdrafts, whether large or small, are not approved by the comptroller of the currency. The large central banks allow overdrafts only in a very small way, and this, it matters not how small is not approved by the powers that be. This unbusinesslike habit of overdrafts grew out of advancing on moving products such as cotton, grain and fat stock on the move. The overdraft system is wrong and the man whose account is always overdrawn is the man who spends more money than he makes and will finally have no bank account.

HE CRAVES STATEHOOD

The News is in receipt of a communication from a friend who signs himself, "An Indian Citizen." The letter is too long for publication in full. It explains why the people are almost universally going to vote for the constitution and try to get statehood.

The writer says the people of Indian Territory are sick of departmental rulings and long distance government. He arranges the republic in party for constitution. The restrictions on Indian lands, the keeping of the Indians in the land, and making the good white settlers leave in disgust a county where they can neither get homes nor schools nor tools. As the writer states, "The republic is in the luckwood."

We are going to get statehood, says
he, and with Hon. Henry M. Furrman in the U. S. senate we will get restrictions removed and secure relief from the terrible conditions now existing.

The MYSTERY
of CARNEYCROFT
BY JOSEPH BROWN COOKE STORY-F. EDD CORPORATION

CHAPTER XV
A New Victim

Good morning Mr. Ware? exclaimed Miss Carney as I made a somewhat tardy appearance at the breakfast table not long after my arrival at Carneycroft in acceptance of Mrs. Randolph's invitation. What report has the bold Nimrod today?
Are we to have game for dinner tomorrow sir?

Not so much as the report of a gun, I replied as I dropped into my seat. I only flushed one bird and he flew straight into foliage so dense that I couldn't get a ghost of a sight on him.

We don't mind so long as we don't get a sight of a ghost some dark night do we? Nan? laughed Miss Carney. Besides I've ordered some partridges from town and we won't be disappointed in our dinner either.
You should be very grateful to me for saving the day for you sir!

You might save my reputation too
if you would only remark casually as the game is served that I have been out shooting every morning since I came. I suggested with a smile. I believe you are to have guests tomorrow.

Yes she returned with provoking gravity but it is to be the rector and his wife. I would do a great deal for you as you know but in such highly moral company you are asking too much.

Speaking of ghosts Mr. Ware said Miss Weston whose assumption of interest and good spirits was scarcely in keeping with her wanly glistering eyes and the pale emaciated hectic expression of her face you seem to have these Carneycroft wraiths most decidedly under your control. You have laid them in a word haven't you?

There certainly have been no canny doings since we've been here
cried Miss Carney in a bantering tone.
I don't really believe that Mr. Ware ever laid a ghost in his life my dear he has just been trying to tease us all the time!

I think Dr. MacArdel had more to do with it than I! I replied gravely.
He engineered the whole campaign against them and is entitled to all the credit of putting an end to their performances.

Did you say that a woman was the leading spirit in all this mysterious affair? asked Miss Weston with interest.

Yes I returned and a most mild-mannered woman too. You never would imagine that she could be capable of originating such a startling thing.

It seems while
I was her the other Weston. Was it
by the way that the house was by the way.

The very one I replied thinking
And this same motherly I said you call her in as she is called and trace is so please when reason requires she ought to be on the stage
I assure you.

Why what did she do that was so tragic? they exclaimed in a breath and Miss Carney continued reprovingly. You couldn't have told us the whole story I'm sure. Please give us the tragic part of it at once, Mr.
Ware.

Well I said thoughtfully Dr.
MacArdel put her through a course of sputs that made a strong hearty man faint away twice and yet she never said a word nor moved a muscle.

How delightfully interesting! said Miss Weston. I should never have dreamed from her appearance that she had so much fortitude. What could Dr. MacArdel have done that was so thrilling?

Oh he didn't do much I returned.
He just asked some questions about the things that had been going on but he did it in a way that was very effective. We wanted to learn who wrote the mysterious note that I had received on the night of my arrival. We found out that she did it but it was only by chance and not through any thing that she told us. If she had been a little more clever in delivering the other I am afraid we would be in the dark about it yet.

And so this Mrs. Bruce really wrote them both did she? asked Miss Weston with continued interest. What a horrible creature she must be!

I don't believe she is exactly horrible I said cautiously but she certainly wrote the second note and who ever wrote that one must have written the first as well.

Wouldn't it be interesting if some-more would come? cried Miss Weston enthusiastically. I think it would be the greatest fun in the world!

Happier Poor.

"Old Uncle Dewberry thought he was going to fall heir to a fortune and move in high society. He spent six months learning to cultivate the taste for olives."

"And was he disappointed when the fortune didn't come?"

"Not at all. He's glad he is poor. He says it doesn't take six months to learn how to cultivate the taste for corned beef and cabbage."—Chicago Daily News.

SURPRISE.

Her Answer.

A bashful swain was ho, and so his fervid declaration wrote. And finished up his letter thus:

"My love, on you I simply dote!"

But by return of post he got an answer to his frenzied note. It just contained this crisp advice:

"You'd better find an antidote!"

CORNER FOR THE JUNIORS

THE EAGLE HUNTER.

Daring Feats of Willy Amrhein, of Switzerland.

Who is the bravest man in the world? Well, that's a hard question to answer, isn't it, boys? So much depends!

But suppose we ask who is the most daring man in the world? One might say the Arctic explorer, another might say the African lion hunter, and so on. But I rather think you had not thought of another fellow—the eagle hunter of the Alps. Ah, but he is a daring man! And he is so used to running risks that he actually thinks nothing of it.

One of the greatest eagle hunters in Switzerland is Willy Amrhein. A man who went with him on one of his eagle hunts (and Willy, by the way, makes a specialty of capturing young eagles alive) has written the following account of the day's experience:

We started long before dawn, for we had a long and arduous climb to make, over colossal rocks, dangerous glaciers and yawning abysses, before we could hope to reach the eyrie heights where the eagles nest.

At last we reached a cliff where Willy halted the party and bade us hush, while he crept to the edge, and leaning cautiously over, scanned the shelf of rock at some distance below.

An uplifted finger both warned and beckoned us. With infinite care we crept to the edge and looked down. There was a nest with a couple of eaglets just the age to have shed their white baby down and begin to put on soft feathers. Beside the nest, on the sun-warmed shelf of rock, stood the mother eagle, performing her morning toilet. It was a charming sight! But we had work before us, and alas! had one cruel thing to do!

While the rest of us held him, Willy aimed carefully. Crack! went the gun, and zip! flew the bullet straight to the eagle's heart. She leaped far out in air, gave her wings a mighty flap, then sank straight as a plumb line out of sight into the ravine below.

"Wait here for me," commanded Willy, and he descended as rapidly as he could in the right direction as noticed by his practiced eye. After a time he returned with a broad smile on his face.

"She's a bird, indeed!" said he; "seven feet, if she's an inch, from tip of wing to tip of wing."

After this came the daring work. Having found a suitable ledge overhanging the nest, Willy directed us in arranging some heavy logs as a sort of crane or support for a long pole, from the further end of which he had suspended a stout pulley, and from the pulley hung a long and very strong double rope, to each end of which a sack of rocks was attached.

A set of signals having been arranged between us, he now descended the mountain to a ledge which was about 50 feet below the nest, preferring to ascend from there rather than descend from where we were, for we were fully 75 feet above the nest.

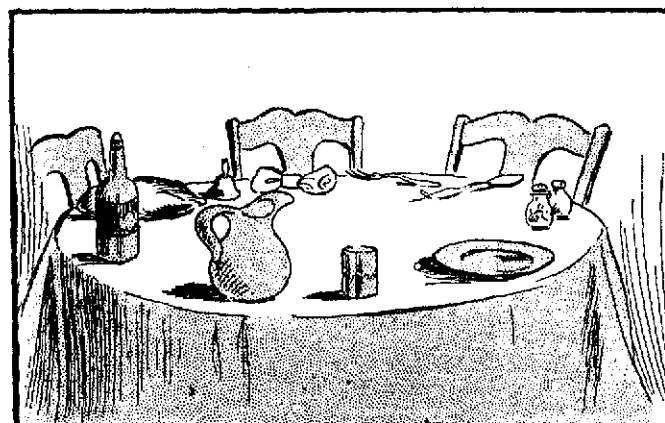

Removing one of the sacks of rock and carefully fastening into its place a rude sort of seat, with a stout, sharp alpen horn in hand, and a couple of sacks in which to place the young eagles, he gave the signal and we from above began to pull him up in air. Slowly, jerk by jerk, we fetched him up through the 50 feet of perils as ascent. When he got fairly swung out in air, we could see the rope begin to swing around in a circle. It was all Willy could do, by means of his alpen horn, to keep his body from striking against the jagged rocks. One mistake might have cost him his life. But no mistake was made, for our man's name was Willy Amrhein.

When he found himself close to the level of the nest he signaled "stop," and as the rope swung him to, he caught the ledge with his hook, drew close and gathered in the eaglets one by one, with infinite care. Then, with a signal "down," he gently let go and started on the even more perilous descent, and the farther down he went the larger circles the rope described, and the more he was in danger of being smashed against the jutting rocks. He descended in safety at last (for to us those minutes of peril seemed hours) and before long, having recovered the dead eagle, we were on our way down to the valley with the live young eagles.

A JOLLY MEMORY GAME.

Arrange ten or a dozen articles on a table, place a very clearly marked number beside each one. Then call in your company and give them just one minute to the second for observing the articles and numbers.

Then they must return to the other room and try to write down the articles in the order in which they were arranged, numbering each properly. At first it will be most difficult for most players to remember everything and every number. But with practice they will find they can depend on their memories more and more.

It is one of the very best games for the family to play. If father or mother complains of failing memory, recommend it to them. It will really benefit them, just as some form of calisthenics will benefit their stiffening muscles.

Sporting Gossip.

Joe Gans, the lightweight champion of the world, and who now announces that he will renounce all claim to the welter-weight title, of which he is the rightful holder, has some pretty good ideas on the fighting game in general. While in Milwaukee recently the negro boxer said there should be a change in the system of weighing in by all means; that boxers should not be allowed to dictate terms so as to get an opponent so weak that he could not do himself or the club which puts up the purse full justice.

Gans is not the dense fellow some of the followers of the game imagine; on the contrary, he is a bright lad and has a good amount of common sense, and he can discuss sporting subjects with a knowledge that would surprise a great many. If Gans were a white boy he would be the idol of the boxing fans, but the fact that he is black makes a big difference.

In speaking of the weighing in proposition Joe said:

"That one deal at Goldfield, Nev., in which Billy Nolan compelled me to weigh three times in one day, one hour apart, and to make a weight that was out of all reason, should make club promoters and followers of the game all over the country take notice. It was an outrage, even though it might be called a clever trick on Nolan's part, for it placed the club in a position of not knowing whether I would enter the ring fit to fight or fit for a hospital. I believe the rules should be entirely revised, and instead of the old Marquis of Queensberry governing contests in this country, there should be a new set drafted for Americans and others to follow. I am not a firm believer in finish battles, although I stand ready to engage in them. I think 25 rounds should be sufficient to decide any contest."

Clarence H. Beaumont, the brilliant outfielder who has been secured by the Boston National League club, is a native of Rochester, Wis., and turned his thirteenth year last July. He played with the Fox River Valley league during 1896-7 and until Aug. 8, 1898, when he was signed by Milwaukee. His fine hitting and batting and superior base running led to his purchase by the Pittsburgh club. He was not given a regular position on the Pittsburgh club until June 26, 1899, and batted for 350 in 104 games and stole 32 bases. Since that time until last season, when he was hampered by a bad leg, he has been a mainstay of the Pittsburgh club. One of his best performances was made in 1899 when he won six times to bat and made six hits, and Aug. 6, in Philadelphia, bat two weeks later, he made five hits including three triples and a double, a total of 12 bases. Twice that season he made four hits in a game.

Jiggs Donahue, now the star first sacker for the White Sox, was once a college star of great magnitude. John L. Zimmerman, prominent Democratic politician of Springfield, tells the story of Jiggs' first experience as a ball player outside the town lots of Springfield. "A decade ago," said Mr. Zimmerman, "Ohio colleges paid far less attention to the amateur standing of the members of the teams than they now do. At Wittenberg we found that we had a pretty fair team, with the exception of a catcher, for we had no one to hold the pitcher. I began to figure on what we could do. Some one told me that Jiggs would be a good man. I secured him, and while I think that he occasionally attended chapel, he certainly did no more. At any rate, he filled all the requirements, and Wittenberg had the best baseball team in her history as a result, although Jiggs at times found it exceedingly hard to conceal his identity. From Wittenberg Jiggs went to Marietta, and the year following became a full fledged professional. I have followed his career with the greatest interest since that time, and I believe that I was more responsible than anyone else for bringing him out." For years Mr. Zimmerman has been a sponsor for Wittenberg athletics, but Donahue is the only real star of the first magnitude which the school has ever turned out.

BASEBALL TALES BY THE PLAYERS

BILL COUGHLIN, CHAS. O'LEARY AND HUGH JENNINGS RE-LATE GOOD ONES.

TWO YEARS TO TRAIN COLTS

Unless the Youngster Breaking Into Star Company is an Exceptional Star He Needs Long Tempering—When Rossmann Disobeyed Orders by Making a Home Run.

"It takes practically two years for the average ball player to become a fixture in major league company," remarks Bill Coughlin, of the Detroit. "There is, of course, the usual exception, the brilliant star, who 'makes good from the start, but it's mighty rare."

"The colt comes into the league. He looks fast in practice, he bats well and has a grand throwing arm. In fact, he often shows up the regulars in all the practice. He can bat, field, and run bases better perhaps."

"But when the season opens and the race starts to tighten, it's different. He isn't the star he was picked to be. He gets on the bases and doesn't know what to do. It's only a fraction of a second probably, but he is lost. He fields all right, but he gets the ball and for a second doesn't know where to throw it. He's lost as soon as he hesitates, for while he stops to think the base runner is streaking homeward."

"If he sticks through the first year he gets over that fairly well, but the whole second year is spent in seasoning him more."

"It takes two years on the firing line to temper the average ball player before he is fit for major league company."

Some one got to telling about how John Anderson, then playing with St. Louis, made his now famous attempt to steal second against Washington when the bases were full, thereby causing all three men to be thrown out in one play.

"Walter Brodie pulled off something like that in Baltimore, only it wasn't quite so bad," said Hugh Jennings. "But it was just as funny."

"Walter had gotten his base on balls and an argument started as to whether the last ball was not a strike."

"Walter saw his chance on first while everybody was arguing and stole second. He was all puffed up over it. The argument continued and he decided to go down to third. He slid in with a mighty effort and then awoke to the fact that there was a runner on third."

"Mike Cantillon tells a funny story about Claud Rossmann," says Herman Schaefer. "It was when Claud was batting around .400 for the Des Moines club."

"Herman Long gave him the signal to sacrifice, and Claud nodded his head. He hit the first ball pitched with a mighty swat for a home run, clearing the bases and winning the game."

"When he came in, with the crowd cheering, he was all smiles until he met Long. Herman was swearing mad, yelling half in English and half in German."

"Didn't I tell you to sacrifice?" he said. "Why don't you follow instructions? I've a good mind to bench you for awhile. I didn't tell you to hit a home run."

"And at that, Long was right," said Rossmann, when reminded of the incident. "I should have obeyed orders."

"My introduction to big league baseball wasn't a very happy affair," says Charley O'Leary, of the Tigers. "The first team I ever played on, outside of those around Chicago, was the White Sox, and they took me to Detroit with them to play a Sunday game. I nearly quit right then and there. If I had I might now be a politician in Chicago."

"It was in one of those games out at Burns park. We won by one run and as we left the park the crowd came at us with beer bottles. It was the bottom of the 'bus for everybody, and as I was the most scared I got there first, I guess. Anyway, everybody else piled on top of me, and we rode into town that way."

"I was nearly smothered. They had a hard time inducing me to believe that that was not an everyday occurrence."

KLING TO PLAY BALL.

Catcher and President of Chicago Team Come to Terms.

Johnny Kling, star catcher of the Chicago National league champions, is back in the fold, having come to an understanding with President Murphy of the club.

The return of Kling to the Cubs will bring joy to the fans, with whom he always has been a popular idol on the west side grounds at Chicago. Kling is in good shape, having been practicing for the last three weeks with the Kansas City club of the American association.

President Barney Dreyfuss was after the services of Kling when he heard that Kling and Murphy could not come to an understanding and sent President Murphy several telegrams asking for terms. Dreyfuss, who was at Louisville with the Pirates, started to burn the wires. Mr. Murphy's reply was: "You can have him for $1,000,000 in real money."

The Pittsburgh magnate came back asking Mr. Murphy to stop joking. To this the Cub magnate answered: "We will take Hans Wagner and $80,000." This closed the incident.
